

HABIT OF THE WORLD

Don't take it personal, they said; but I did, I took it all quite personal

-Tony Hoagland

The jacaranda tree at the end of my street has been losing itself all week, dropping its amethyst and lavender all over the sidewalk, while spring burns off like fog and the sky looks blue and determined.

It's easy to take it personal - this undermining of permanence, this habit of the world.
